

BUSINESS COMMUNICATION

Third Revised & Enlarged Edition

Asrar H. Siddiqi

CONTENTS

Preface	IX
Introduction	XI

PART I: COMMERCIAL CORRESPONDENCE

Chapter 1: Effective Business Communication and Its Importance.	1 - 11
Chapter 2: Principles of Business Writing .	13-20
Chapter 3: Layout and Form of a letter.	21-31

Layout; Form: The letter-head, the date inside name and address, modes of address, foreign correspondence, punctuation, the salutation or greetings, the message, complimentary closure or subscription, signature and official position, Special Parts of Business Letter reference of subject, enclosures, carbon copy notation, mailing notation.

Chapter 4: Paper, Envelopes and Stamps

32-36

Paper, Method of Folding: Octavo paper, quarto paper, foolscap paper, envelopes, addressing, Post Office Rules.

Chapter 5: Bank Correspondence.

37-38

Essentials of a good letter: clearness, conciseness, correctness, courtesy, character.

Chapter 6: Types of Bank Correspondence

39-80

Inland correspondence, Memorandum: Composition of memorandum. Proposal and Sanction letters/ Advices. External Correspondence.

Specimen of Letters:

(1) Request to open an account (2) Notification of signatures to bank from a Public Ltd, Co. (3) Request for Bank Statement (4) Complaint concerning bank charges (5) Bank's reply to Customer (6) Account over-drawn (6-a) Letter from bank (6-b) Account overdrawn: customer's reply (6-c) Account overdrawn: further letter from bank (7) Drawer stops payment (8-a) Complaint concerning dishonoured cheque: from customer to bank (8-b) Reply from bank (9) Request for bank reference (9-a) A suppliers request to the bank (9-b) Reply from bank. (10) Letter from bank on reported loss of cheque. (11) Letter acknowledging instructions given by a customer (12) Request for loan without security (13) Request for loan with security

(14) Request for extension of loan (15)
Adjustment of loan account (a) Banker's letter to customer, (15-b) Customer's reply.
(16-a) Customer's request for investment,
(16-b) Bank's reply, (17-a) Correspondence pertaining to claim, (17-b) Reply from Head Office, (17-c) Letter to claimant, (18) Request for the transfer of an account.

Specimen Letters of various types which are required to be written in our day to day
course of business or life

(19) Letter complaining the excessive amount in an electricity bill (20) Complaint regarding the break-down of electricity in the area (21)
Complaint against excessive telephone bill
(22) Complaint to the Health Officer (23)
Letter for placing an order for some books.

Specimen of memorandum:

- (1) Regarding fall in deposits.
- (2) Regarding misbehaviour.
- (3) On enhancement of rent.
- (4) On a valued client.

Chapter 7: Writing Special Letters. 81-92

Chapter 8: Circular Letters 93-97

Characteristics of a circular letter:
Appropriateness, Attractiveness, Brevity,
Neatness, Courtesy, Originality; Parts of a Circular.

Specimen of Circular

- (1) Safe Deposit Lockers: Bank's responsibility.
- (2) Surprise visits by Officers to their Branches on consecutive holidays.

Chapter 9: Applications

98-108

Types of applications (1) Solicited applications (2) Unsolicited applications. Characteristics of a good application: establishing favourable attention, creating interest, convincing, stimulating action, resume.

Specimen of applications for employment

Chapter 10: Telegraphic Communication

109-114

Kinds of Telegrams — Open telegram, Coded telegrams, Cipher telegrams. Types of Telegrams. Making out telegrams. Rules for sending telegrams.

Chapter 11: Oral Communication within groups.

115-120

Chapter 12: Interpersonal Non-written Communication

121-130

Chapter 13: Leading and Participating in Conferences

131-138

PART II BASIC ENGLISH

Chapter 14: Functional Grammar

141-158

Parts of Speech. Noun: Classes of Nouns, Gender, Numbers: How plurals are formed. Person; Pronouns: Classes of Pronouns. Verbs. Voice: principles of conversion from active into passive voice. Tenses: Table of tenses. Direct and Indirect speech; rules for changing direct speech into indirect speech.

Chapter 15: Structure of Sentences

159-162

Simple sentences, Compound sentences, Complex sentences, Compound—Complex sentences. Characteristics of a good sentence. The length of a sentence. Qualities of a sentence—Unity, Coherence.

Chapter 16: Vocabulary and use of Words

163-180

Choose the right word. Use of synonyms. Use of antonyms. Use of similar words.

Chapter 17: Common Errors in Grammar

181-193

The use of Verb: stressing the group, stressing the member forming the group, use of pronouns. Use of adjectives. Use of adverbs. Miscellaneous.

PART III COMPOSITIONS

Chapter 18: Idioms

196-203

Chapter 19: Precis Writing

204-208

Method of precis writing. Principal points to be kept in mind while writing a precis: Specimen of passages and their precis.

Chapter 20: Report Writing

209-221

The objectives of report writing. Types of reports: routine reports, information reports, investigation reports, technical reports, project reports. Preparation and methodology. Physical presentation of reports. Language and style. Specimen of information report. Specimen of investigation report.

Chapter 21: Essay Writing

223-231

Characteristics of a good essay. Classification of essays. Hints on essay writing: general preparation, special preparation. Model Essay: Ambition in life, The Newspaper, Dignity of Labour.